Speaker's Dinner Tonight Concludes
White House State
Series.Vice President and Mrs. Marshall
Welcome Thousand Guests.
Other Events—Notes.

The last state dinner of the winter's series of events will be given at the White House tonight. The honor guests will be the Speaker and Mrs. Champ Clark.

The reception given at the New Willard last night by the Vice President and Mrs. Marshall was a brilliant event, in which the official and resident world of the capital was delightfully represented. The occasion let the friends of this popular couple see what they could do in the matter of hospitality when they had selected ball-rooms large enough to give a thousand and perhaps five hundred more of their friends plenty of room to promenade, to dance and to enjoy supper with equal comfort and satisfaction.

A third of the space in the large ballroom was arranged as a reception room, the host and hostess and those assisting them welcoming them there. The rest of the big room and the adjoining ballroom were given over to the dancers. Supper, served from buffet tables, was placed on small tables, around which the guests were seated, if they so desired.

An effective decoration was in place, consisting of southern smilax, palms and other foliage plants in groups, and the festive touch of the yellow and black draperies seen at the recent Beaux Arts ball, and which are being left in place to frame the scene again at the Saturday night gridiron dinner. The Marine Band, divided into two sections, played in the gallery over the main entrance and in the small ballroom. When the dancing was in full swing the scene was an exceedingly beautiful one.

Those assisting the Vice President and Mrs. Marshall were: Senator and Mrs. George P. McLean, Senator and Mrs. Willard Saulsbury, Senator and Mrs. John W. Weeks, Senator and Mrs. James A.
